What is ITEP?

ITEP utilises a visual communication and care planning approach known as node link mapping, which is used by trained key workers with their clients.

These psychosocial interventions have a number of positive outcomes in terms of clients' treatment experiences and reductions in illicit drug use. In 2007 the National Treatment Agency found that employing ITEP interventions resulted in:

- Clients experiencing a better rapport with their key workers.
- Increased levels of client participation in treatment.
- Higher rates of service retention and completion.
- Clients benefited from increased peer support.

In addition to mapping, the ITEP treatment manual contains brief interventions aimed at changing thinking patterns. Mapping is a visual medium for clarifying shared information between client and key worker. It helps clients to look at the causes and effects of their thinking and also assists in problem solving.
